

Tired of all those salmon?

Then vote for Gordon $mith

www.wiseass.org/smith-salmon

Tired of all those salmon?

Then vote for Gordon $mith

www.wiseass.org/smith-salmon

Tired of all those salmon?

Then vote for Gordon $mith

www.wiseass.org/smith-salmon

Tired of all those salmon?

Then vote for Gordon $mith

www.wiseass.org/smith-salmon

Gordon Smith played politics during the 2001 drought by subverting conservation laws and destroying endangered salmon simply to win re-election in 2002. In order to secure rural southern-Oregon votes in his last election, Smith and the Bush administration over-rode water level policies and violated the law, specifically the Endangered Species Act. Smith did this in order to appease agricultural interests for political gain.

Forgoing proposed solutions which could have avoided the crisis by adopting plans which buy up land from farmers willing to sell and subsidizing area farms impacted by the drought. This would have protected farms, saved salmon runs and the fishing industry. Karl Rove and Gordon Smith instead looked at opinion polls and overturned the science. The result...?

The largest fish-kill in the region's history!

When it comes to conservation, protecting Oregon's natural resources, its farms and its fisheries, Gordon Smith's D.C. votes don't match his Oregon quotes. Find out more at:

www.wiseass.org/smith-salmon

Gordon Smith played politics during the 2001 drought by subverting conservation laws and destroying endangered salmon simply to win re-election in 2002. In order to secure rural southern-Oregon votes in his last election, Smith and the Bush administration over-rode water level policies and violated the law, specifically the Endangered Species Act. Smith did this in order to appease agricultural interests for political gain.

Forgoing proposed solutions which could have avoided the crisis by adopting plans which buy up land from farmers willing to sell and subsidizing area farms impacted by the drought. This would have protected farms, saved salmon runs and the fishing industry. Karl Rove and Gordon Smith instead looked at opinion polls and overturned the science. The result...?

The largest fish-kill in the region's history!

When it comes to conservation, protecting Oregon's natural resources, its farms and its fisheries, Gordon Smith's D.C. votes don't match his Oregon quotes. Find out more at:

www.wiseass.org/smith-salmon

Gordon Smith played politics during the 2001 drought by subverting conservation laws and destroying endangered salmon simply to win re-election in 2002. In order to secure rural southern-Oregon votes in his last election, Smith and the Bush administration over-rode water level policies and violated the law, specifically the Endangered Species Act. Smith did this in order to appease agricultural interests for political gain.

Forgoing proposed solutions which could have avoided the crisis by adopting plans which buy up land from farmers willing to sell and subsidizing area farms impacted by the drought. This would have protected farms, saved salmon runs and the fishing industry. Karl Rove and Gordon Smith instead looked at opinion polls and overturned the science. The result...?

The largest fish-kill in the region's history!

When it comes to conservation, protecting Oregon's natural resources, its farms and its fisheries, Gordon Smith's D.C. votes don't match his Oregon quotes. Find out more at:

www.wiseass.org/smith-salmon

Gordon Smith played politics during the 2001 drought by subverting conservation laws and destroying endangered salmon simply to win re-election in 2002. In order to secure rural southern-Oregon votes in his last election, Smith and the Bush administration over-rode water level policies and violated the law, specifically the Endangered Species Act. Smith did this in order to appease agricultural interests for political gain.

Forgoing proposed solutions which could have avoided the crisis by adopting plans which buy up land from farmers willing to sell and subsidizing area farms impacted by the drought. This would have protected farms, saved salmon runs and the fishing industry. Karl Rove and Gordon Smith instead looked at opinion polls and overturned the science. The result...?

The largest fish-kill in the region's history!

When it comes to conservation, protecting Oregon's natural resources, its farms and its fisheries, Gordon Smith's D.C. votes don't match his Oregon quotes. Find out more at:

www.wiseass.org/smith-salmon